

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Something For Everybody

Washington, Nov. 1. HERE USED to be a great deal of unctuary writing and speaking by our professional liberals about the way they loved to call the policy laissez faire. The modern politician, however, and now apparently adopted by the Truman Administration, is to give almost everybody something without counting the cost or considering the effects.

—O—
THE NEW $6,000,000,000 tax reduction bill is, at the moment, the outstanding example of this—though there are others. The workers are given more pay per hour; the farmers will get further Government subsidies to assure a fixed level; the veterans, besides their tax privileges, are to get surplus property rights and being promised loans and, later, more; foreign nations are to receive large loans to aid in economic stabilization; members of Congress are to receive increased compensation; business, big and little, is given everything else, gets relief.

—O—
EVERYBODY gets something more than others, some party justified, others not justified at all. But everybody gets something. This will please a vast number of voters. That no group or class is left out keeps popular protest to a minimum, soothes the people's whole, nullifies reason, produces the vague and exceedingly Continued on Page Two

FOR COUNCIL

WILLIAM A. PEARSON

William H. Pearson, Republican nominee to succeed himself as Councilman from the Sixth Ward, has been a Borough resident all his life.

Born in Bristol on June 1, 1900, Mr. Pearson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert and Bertha Pearson.

He attended Bristol public schools, and then continued his education in Philadelphia, where he was graduated from the Friends Central School and from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, specializing in chemistry.

He has been employed by Rohm and Haas for twenty-two years.

In 1925 he married Miss Marian E. DeLong. They are parents of two children.

Mr. Pearson is a member of Bristol Lodge, No. 970, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, in which he served on the House Committee. He also is a member of the Friends Central School Alumni Association, and the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science Alumni Association.

Mr. Pearson's service in the Bristol Borough Council began in 1937 when he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Edgar Spencer, who moved from his district shortly after his re-election. Mr. Pearson has served on two important Council committees, Municipal Water Supply and Fire Protection.

50 ATTEND PARTY

The Sunday School of Italian Presbyterian Church held a Halloween party, Monday evening, in the church basement. Fifty were present. Fancy, comic and original costumes were chosen. Games were enjoyed. Ralston Hedrick showed "movies," and refreshments of ice cream, doughnuts and apples were served.

FURTHER ORGANIZE LOWER CO. RED CROSS

Mrs. Millard P. Smedley, of Newtown, Presides At Langhorne Meeting

MRS. LEAP SPEAKS

LANGHORNE, Nov. 1—Lower Bucks County American Red Cross held its first meeting in the new administrative headquarters in the community house, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Millard P. Smedley, chairman of the branch, presided.

The purpose of the meeting was to further the organization of the branch. Service chairman from five of the seven districts attended. Nominations for over-all chairman were received. Appointments will be announced at a later date.

At the meeting, Mrs. William L. Leap, assistant manager of S. E. Chapter, American Red Cross, pointed out "the new headquarters in Langhorne is a thing apart from the home service office located in Bristol. The Home Service office at 129 Mill street, Bristol, will continue to serve the branch or seven districts under the supervision of

THE COUNTY ELECTION BUCKS COUNTY FINANCES

(This is one of a series of articles on the issues and candidates to be voted on at the General Election, November 6.)

The whole picture of the excellent condition into which successive Republican administrations have brought Bucks county finances cannot be told in the simple terms of tax rate, debt and surplus, although these of course are the most important points. Here they are:

Tax rate, 3 1/2 mills.
Net bonded debt, $49,045.
Surplus Dec. 31, 1944, $180,903.60.

To see clearly how efficient and business-like the county government has been under its present leadership, it is necessary first to remember that the services of the county have been kept at a high level and have been extended, and second to look at comparative figures from other counties.

Is Bucks County's success under Republican leadership merely part of a trend, or is it the result of outstanding good management which ought by all means to be kept in office?

Let's look first at taxes. Here are four counties of similar size and wealth, with their tax rates:

Northumberland	19 mills
Mercer	10 mills
Blair	6 mills
Bucks	3 1/2 mills

How about bonded debt? Here are the five Fifth Class counties, with their net bonded debt and the yearly cost of paying interest and tax on the debt.

	Net bonded debt	Annual cost
Mercer	$1,389,920	$83,480
Northumberland	720,000	26,230
Blair	97,269	15,080
Chester	174,861	11,773
Bucks	49,045	3,136

It is conspicuous that the yearly cost of the debt in Mercer county is considerably more than the total Bucks county debt, and also that Bucks County saves nearly $80,000 a year by not having gone so heavily in debt as Mercer county.

There is a detail about the above figures which is of interest in showing how good management saves money. It will be noted that Chester County, with nearly twice as much net debt as Blair County, still pays less in carrying charges. This is because the total of outstanding bonds in Blair county, $324,873, is much larger than Chester county's $200,000. Blair has enough money in its sinking fund to reduce the actual indebtedness to the smaller figures; but the bonds cannot be retired until maturity, so the interest charges continue. It is evident from the table above that the Bucks County government has stayed clear of such expensive financial methods.

Let us look at a different kind of comparison. Are Bucks County's finances improving under Republican administration? The figures show the answer to be yes.

Four years ago the gross bonded debt (not allowing for the sinking fund) was $96,000. Now it is $64,000. Four years ago the tax rate was 4 mills; now it is 3 1/2.

APPLE YIELD TO BE FAR BELOW AVERAGE

Weather Conditions Blamed For Poor Crop In Bucks Co.

SPRAYING NEGLECTED

According to County Agent William F. Greenawald, Bucks county's apple yield last season was about 25 per cent normal, and this, he said, was due in a large measure to unfavorable weather conditions. Not only was the yield far below average, but in general the quality of the fruit has been poor.

FOR COUNCIL

CHARLES G. RATHKE

Charles G. Rathke, Republican nominee to succeed himself as Councilman from the Sixth Ward, is a younger member of Council who has made a strong impression on the body during the single full term he has served.

He has frequently served as presiding officer during Council meetings, and takes an active part in several fields of the Council's work.

Appointed to the Borough Council on January 18, 1940, Mr. Rathke ran for and was elected to the full term the following year. He succeeded the late Frank Pfeifer.

Born in Bristol on October 4, 1894, son of the late Gustav A. and the late Augusta Rathke, he attended public schools here. During the First World War, he spent fourteen months in the U. S. Army, serving with the Personnel Detachment, Headquarters Company, of the 79th Division.

For nearly twenty years he has been an electrical contractor here, but was now employed at the Rohm and Haas plant as an electrician. Prior to that he was employed as electrician in the Wm. H. Grundy & Co. worsted mill, and by various Philadelphia concerns.

Mr. Rathke is a member of Bristol Lodge, No. 25, Free and Accepted Masons; Bristol Lodge No. 970, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks; and Hopkins Lodge, No. 87, Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He is a past commander of the Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, of the American Legion, and is past district deputy of the Ninth Legion District. He attends the Methodist Church.

In Borough Council Mr. Rathke is a member of the Street and Highway Committee and of the Public Works Committee.

Now Distributing Telephone Directories

Distribution of new telephone directories in this section started yesterday and will continue through November 20, it was announced today by W. B. Taylor, manager of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

The new Lower Bucks County and Suburban Philadelphia directory contains a more compact and convenient classified section, Mr. Taylor said. Business and professional subscribers in Lower Bucks Constance, Mr. and Mrs. Rocco in the classified section under appropriate headings. Business and professional listings in more distant exchanges, which local people call less frequently, appear in other directories.

The Great Game of Politics

foolish public notion that somehow "everything will come out right in the end." The few voices raised in warning are scarcely heard. Both parties in Congress, along with the White House (Mr. Truman) and the Treasury (Secretary Vinson) are responsible for an inexcusable disregard of realities. And the greater their intelligence the heavier their responsibility.

THIS business of giving something to everybody has been going on for some time. It can be kept going for some years more. But to think that in the end it will not inflict dreadful punishment upon the people as a whole is to ignore human experience and shut out the facts.

Except that it makes for an un-disciplined and thriftless people, this policy might be all right in an unshakably solvent nation with its Treasury bursting with surplus revenue. But, certainly, it is a hell of a policy for a nation in the fiscal condition this nation is today. And it is wicked to encourage the belief that it can be pursued without great risk to all.

JUST look at this tax-bill situation.
With the national debt soon to exceed the incredible and unprecedented sum of $300,000,000,000; with a great naval and military establishment to maintain; with heavy demands from all quarters for new and increased expenditures and with the interest on the debt alone exceeding $3,000,000,000 annually—with all these things indisputably clear, Congress passes and the Administration acquiesces in a tax bill that will cost $5,920,000,000 a year from our revenues, exempt wholly from taxation 12,000,000 persons, and make budget balancing a grim joke. It is not easy to reconcile this with sound fiscal policy or ordinary common sense.

BUT it becomes a lot harder when two other facts are added. One is that the very day the Congress passed this bill to exempt 12,000,000 persons, reduced taxes on all brackets and let off nearly six billion in receipts the Treasury launched its $11,000,000,000 Victory Loan. The other is that, though the Federal governmental machine is swollen and costly beyond all reason, this reduction in taxes and increase in debt is unaccompanied by any corresponding retrenchment in expenses. The effort on that line is both puny and phony.

—O—

PUT these facts together and they add up to something that makes no sense at all. For this deeply disturbing state of affairs, one does not know whom to blame most—the small and selfish politicians who take the country in this dangerous direction because it is the easy way to get votes; or the unthinking, indifferent American people, lulled into a false sense of security, who permit the politicians to do these things to them. These new Victory Bonds are still the world's best investment. If they are not good, then nothing is good.
But it is an outrageous thing not to buttress them with a sound fiscal policy and rigid economy. Recently conquered victorious from a great war in which we performed miracles of production at home and prodigies of valor abroad, the manner in which we are now managing our domestic affairs makes us appear a nation of incurable saps, who, once the immediate and obvious peril is passed, sink back into political lethargy while the chisel-ers and demagogues undermine our economic foundations.

THE COUNTY ELECTION

Four years ago the annual carrying charges for the county debt was $5,782; now it is $3,136—a saving of $2500 a year in this one item alone.

In spite of broadening county services, in spite of expensive improvements in auditing and indexing, in spite of the high level of performance in all county activities—and in spite also of a cut in the tax rate from 4 mills to 3½ mills—the Bucks County government under Republican leadership continues to show a healthy and growing surplus. Here are the figures:

	Surplus
1941	$ 8,957.19
1942	87,995.21
1943	160,322.67
1944	180,903.60

By any yardstick, the efficiency and economy of Republican administration in Bucks County is outstanding. Tax rate? Bucks county's 3½ mills compares with an average of 8 mills for similar counties. Debts? The average debt for Pennsylvania counties is more than $2,000,000, compared with Bucks' net bonded debt of $49,045. Surplus? Few counties are able to accumulate a surplus even with rising taxes, but Bucks County has cash in the bank totalling $180,903.60, despite the fact that a low tax rate was cut even lower.

Not merely the taxpayers, but all the other residents and workers in Bucks county benefit from such excellent administration.

There is just one way to keep it in office and that is to vote for it.

Be sure to go to the polls on November 6, and vote

"Each anxious thought, each restless step,
From which we seek release,
Will yield to faith; triumphant trust,
When committed to the Prince of Peace!"

Recompense, by Ralph D. Henry.
Most gracious Lord, Thou hast promised to keep "Him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee." So deliver us from doubts and fears as we come unto Thee this day, for solace and renewed strength, in our Saviour's name, Amen.

parts of the county. The event which is formal will also include presentation of awards to the Sea Scouts and Explorers who have made advancement during the past few months.

With 70% of the goal of the Council Finance Campaign raised to date, which is represented by $14,172.83, the campaign will continue. The West Bucks District, which includes the areas of Siles, Harts-ville, Johnsville, Warminster, Trevoise, Richboro, Ivyland, Churchville, Feasterville, and Southampton, is the first district to go "over the top." Many additional communities are breaking previous records. The necessity of co-operation with other efforts in communities throughout the Council, has slowed the progress which is normally made. It is expected, however, that the goal of $20,000, which is necessary for the maintenance and furtherance of Scouting throughout the coming year, will be reached.

The Annual District meetings of each District in the Council will take place between now and the end of the year. Those already scheduled for the near future are: Delaware Valley at the Langhorne Presbyterian Church on November 7th, the Middle Bucks at the Doylestown Inn on November 8th, the Lower Bucks on November 13th.

Training course for the basic training of the leaders will begin in the Middle Bucks District on Thursday, Nov. 1st, at which time all Scouts of the district will

Vote "Yes"

On the $13,000 Bond Issue
ON NOVEMBER 6th

If you vote "YES" you vote for a much improved school system

If you vote "No" you vote for a confused, inferior and more expensive school system

VOTE "YES"—And make possible a modern high school which will be owned and operated by the school districts which approve the bond issue

VOTE "YES"—And keep the tax rate in Hulmeville Borough low, and at the same time provide a better program for Hulmeville pupils.

have an opportunity to learn the latest methods which should be set in conducting the troop program. A similar course is being held in Langhorne.

On Friday evening a meeting of the Scouts of Lower Bucks will be held at the Bristol Presbyterian Church, at which time a National Council training film "Patrol Methods" will be shown. This film will also be used at the training course in the other districts. Every effort is being made to meet the requirements of the training and organization committees of the Council, so that Scout leaders must take the basic training in order to serve in that capacity. This will continue to raise the standards of Scout leadership among the Scouts of these communities.

6 Individuals Are Seeking Divorces

They were married at Montrose, March 4, 1944.

Married January 25, 1935, at Haycock Run Church, Virginia C. Lusczak Courtney, Kellers Church, is asking for a divorce from Lawrence J. Courtney, Dublin.

Kathryn M. Fahringer, Bath street, Bristol, has filed a libel in divorce against James A. Fahringer, Cornwells Heights. The couple were married November 21, 1936, at Bristol.

Apple Yield to be Far Below Average

The Stayman variety, said Mr. Greenawalt, is of extremely poor quality because of what is known as growth crack, which is caused by the wet weather.

Many of the apples which dropped prematurely have been purchased by persons engaged in making cider. Many of the apples dropped prematurely because of the extremely warm weather last March, following which there was a severe freeze. Apples that had been formed were killed by the frost that they dropped, and others were nipped so badly by the frost that they failed to mature. In addition to this, the pollination was poor.

When some of the orchardists saw their apple yields would be poor the past season they neglected their spray program with the result that many of the trees defoliated prematurely. Failure to spray permitted the scab and other diseases to develop.

Among the varieties that produced fairly well during the season were Grimes Golden, Delicious, Jonathan and Rome Beauty. The Stayman yield was poor and in general the quality was quite low.

From observations this Fall, said Mr. Greenawalt, the mouse infestation in the orchards during the winter will be rather heavy, and growers are preparing their poison bait. Mice burrowing under the surface of the soil get at the roots of the trees, and if the damage is severe, it will kill the trees.

Acclaimed For Consistent Sales of Bonds, Stamps

Miss Helen Irene Durr, of Bensalem Township, was publicly acclaimed by the Treasury Department's Pennsylvania War Saving staff for her consistent effort throughout World War II, in selling war bonds and stamps. Helen was one of the 100 distinguished guests given a seat of honor upon the reviewing stand at Broad and Sansom streets, Philadelphia. They witnessed the exercises of the opening of Victory Loan Campaign at which General Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Bataan and Corregidor, spoke following a triumphant tour through Philadelphia.

Victory Loan salesmen are out in full force in the Andalusia and Newportville - Bridgewater, Echo Beach and Upper Bensalem districts. In Cornwells, Eddington and Trevoise, the schools under the supervision of A. Kurtz King are carrying the campaign. Since the Bensalem War Saving Staff Committee has been unable to enlist house-to-house canvassers in these communities it is their hope residents in these areas will go to their post offices to purchase their victory bonds, requesting that either of the three schools be credited with the amount of their purchase.

Andalusia volunteers participating in the Victory Loan are: Mrs. Ella Weber, captain; Mrs. Viola Kish, Mrs. Robert Wilson, Agatha Scarborough, Mrs. Robert VanSant, Miss Dorothea Wenner, Mrs. James McCartney, Mrs. William Breen. Cornwells business district will be canvassed by Mrs. Marie Vandegrift.

Echo Beach: Mrs. William Durr, Miss Helen I. Durr; Newportville-Bridgewater: Mrs. Walter Gillette, captain; Ruth and Marian Matlocks, Harry Robinson, Alice Nemic, Mrs. Winifred Lowrie, and Newportville Girl Scout Troop, Walter H. Gillette, Newport Cub Pack, Mrs. Margaret Potterton.

PARTY FOR YOUNG FOLKS

A Halloween party was enjoyed by 60 young people of Harriman Methodist Church on Monday evening. Costume prizes were awarded. The Rev. William Carroll sponsored the games, assisted by the Senior Girl Scouts. Prizes were also given for games. Refreshments of ice cream, cookies, apples and candy were served.

CROYDON

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Stanzel and son Arno, of River Road, and Miss Marie Donato, of Philadelphia, are spending a few days in Binghamton, N. Y., visiting Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Neitig.

The death of Philip Fegeley's sister, Mrs. Harry Gardner, of Philadelphia, occurred October 26. Mr. and Mrs. William Siebold had as a week-end visitor, Mrs. Arthur Teichman, of Oak Lane. Arthur Teichman is improving after being confined in Chestnut Hill Hospital for more than a week.

On Saturday evening friends of Mrs. George Brantigan tendered her a surprise party in honor of her birthday anniversary. There were 30 guests present from Philadelphia, Croydon and Bristol. Refreshments were served, and Mrs. Brantigan received many gifts. There were four honorably discharged veterans present, all of whom served overseas: Arno Stanzel, William Johnston, Richard Brown, of Croydon, and Gaston Dennis, of Bristol.

tell me that the train of tion was for the Naval Briglimpse of. It was a beautiful morning, the Karoo never looked better. Gorgeous flowers of every imaginable color, were to be seen in patches, making one feel good, though but half alive.

These were my thoughts and feelings as we started to climb the twenty-six past the Stations of Jan-De-Boers and Constable, half way to Pieter Mentjes and the summit, after which we would descend some twenty-seven miles, mostly 1 in 40 declines before coming to any appreciable incline.

We had stopped nowhere on the road to this point, had we done so, we would have learned the quality of our brakes, and could have rectified same, and so saved ourselves from the dangers that we afterwards had to meet.

Even at the summit the dispatcher was there waiting for us, which deprived us of our last hope before going over the top. It was now too late.

Our trouble began as soon as we entered the down grade. My mate looked at me, and I looked at him, but only for a moment, never will I forget his expression, what was amiss? Even now, after so many years it haunts me, every emotion he was suffering was exposed in that brief moment. Fear was up- permost, because he knew the kind of road we had to negotiate, and was trying to speculate what chance there was left for us, and fully realizing how remote it was, he contemplated jumping, this was most apparent to me.

From then on there was no time to worry about myself, my full concentration must be on him, as well as a means to lessen our fast gaining momentum. So, with a very sinking feeling in my stomach, I began to sing, and he stared at me, thinking perhaps, my reason was already weakening.

This, for a moment, diverted his mind off jumping. Then I began to talk, and as he had come off the same railroad as myself over seas, I mentioned a very popular train that then was, perhaps still is, called the "Timman." Daily it ran past his home in Hereford, and it was timed very keenly, and I said, "This is like old times, Bert, entering Barton Junction dead on time, isn't it?" My purpose was to get him to speak, and I succeeded, but all that he said was "Yes, but you then had the means of stopping anywhere, you haven't that privilege now."

We had just passed the intermediate siding of Bantams, situated in the middle of a steep bank at terrific speed, my eyes were shut while passing, but he didn't know it. I knew then that should we be crossing at the station we were approaching at such a clip, it would be curtains for us.

This station was called Matjesfontein, a regular crossing place for all trains, because nearly all engines watered there. For the moment it was still out of sight, but I felt almost like collapsing from anxiety as to what the next curve would reveal, but I dare not show it.

While dropping the sand, reversing the lever, then opening the cylinder drain taps to ease the back pressure, I succeeded in hiding my real feelings, working very hard to comfort the troubled soul that was watching every movement made. Tooting the engine whistle frantically we approached the facing points, and there, to my intense joy, for which I thanked God, I saw that the station was clear. Was anything on it's way there? The next question that flashed through my mind. No! for there was the station master signalling me on with a white flag and "line clear" order in his hand, assuring me that all was clear through his section. That old man claimed all our love, although he may not have thought so after sending him sprawling on the platform, trying to snatch the order from his hand.

Feeling momentarily relieved, I had time now to realize that all my attention could be focused upon easing the mad rush that was growing apace, if at all possible. Even Bert, knowing that there was no danger of meeting anything opposite within that section, appeared to improve, slightly, because he known what had yet to come. Dips, curves, rises, mostly overlooking vast caverns hundreds of feet deep, each of which could easily be our tomb, should we fail to surmount them.

Speed was Bert's greatest fear now, there was no hope of jumping, because we were running on the lip of a mountain, with precipitous rocks on one side, and a deep drop on the other.

Trying not to show my excitement, with my stomach upside down we passed through Whitehills almost without seeing it, all the things that had been done so many times, had to be repeated. To do nothing was suicidal, and as we were close upon a short, but stiff gradient into Mostert's Hoek, I meant to make the most of it. All to no avail, not the slightest perceptible check took place. From now on I suffered every one of the human emotions possible.

Not knowing what to do next, I whistled up the guard, though feeling it was all quite unnecessary. He was doing all he could, no doubt, one must do something on such an occasion as this, or bust.

The box-van in the middle of the train, not only obscured our view of the caboose, but also debarred us from crossing the trucks to that vehicle. I would have felt more satisfied could I have seen the guard, and knew that everything possible was being done for the safety of the train. In an agony of feeling, a vague memory returned of enjoying this beautiful landscape, verdant valleys and kloofs. The half clothed kopjes, with their rugged sun-bathed tops in distant view, and glorying in this panorama of Nature's fairland, blossoming and fragrant to the senses.

Magnificent beyond anything that words or photography can convey, the high and lonely peaks that loomed in austere beauty.

But how all this had changed with my distorted vision, the kopjes had become huge frowning giants, and as though disturbed from their slumber, one could hear the echoes of their wrath as we rattled by them in shameful haste.

The valleys looked like yawning gaps all leading to perdition. Momentarily would they disappear as we rounded a curve, but only to appear again more sinister looking than before, seemingly enjoying the suspension of our coming destruction. The kloofs, dotted here and there bedecked with pigments of all colors, only reminded one of the grave awaiting to receive our mangled remains.

If my mate had enjoyed any hope before, which was doubtful, it had certainly deserted him now. I could feel him eyeing me keener than ever. Knowing this, in my subdued frenzy, I began to sing, but there was wisdom in my apparent madness.

The faster we careened the louder my voice was raised, to the accompaniment of screaming flanges and strange bumps, my heart high bursting at each interruption. Each curve in turn we seemed to round on one side wheels, and while the sparks flew you could feel that all the weight was on the one side of the boxes.

On each short straight I sighed, but we were too soon on the next curve to enjoy it, then the same emotions would recur. So it went on for many miles, only occupying but a few minutes, but it represented a lifetime to me.

At last we came to the long straight that led on to Laingsburg bridge, beyond which there was but one curve, the worst and most dangerous of all, but being that the approach was not too steep, there was still hope that our luck would not desert us. The lesser grade may help to reduce the speed to the safety limit, and it was several miles long, another advantage, if so, we need not fear the curve.

If our momentum did not respond to this last reduced gradient, then indeed were we lost, for if we could not round the curve at the far end of the bridge, 50 feet of solid rock faced us, one may imagine what would happen.

Being somewhat resigned to our fate, all action ceased, no more could be done. What was to be would be, and that was that.

Suddenly it began to dawn upon us that our speed was surely slackening. No, how could this be, our minds must be faltering, were not our brake-blocks almost worn out with the constant application, how was such a thing possible? Still, the fact remained, we could even feel that some power was restraining our head-long rush, and strange though it may seem, I was filled with a fear, a fear that perhaps some of the train had become derailed, or that possibly some under-slung apparatus of a truck had broken away and was tugging at the permanent way, both, or either could create serious consequences with a train of high explosives.

Soon overcoming this temporary fear, and upon looking back, everything appeared to be in order, all trucks upstanding, and no unusual clouds of dust to warrant danger. Who could explain this phenomenon that was taking place? Was it an act of God? We really thought so at the time, and do so still.

We crossed the bridge at no dangerous pace, and rounded the dangerous and dread curve just a little quicker than the ordinary way, just stopping the train some two bogie lengths beyond the platform.

What the station staff thought of me, I never knew, but they looked at me very searchingly, for such a quick passage between Matjesfontein and Laingsburg had never occurred before.

While examining my engine, the guard appeared, looking both excitable and fearful, asking me the time, being under the impression that his watch had stopped. His appearance forced me to the conclusion that he had just recently wakened, knowing nothing whatever of our dangerous run or difficulties.

This I eventually persuaded him to confess (promising that no report would be made to any official), at the same time adding, that during the transfer of cabooses, the continuous pipe was not even coupled up, a fact he didn't know till the train had stopped.

His efficient emergency hand-brake had furnished the seeming miracle.

My purpose was to get him to speak, and I succeeded, but all that he said was "Yes, but you then had the means of stopping anywhere, you haven't that privilege now."

We had just passed the intermediate siding of Bantams, situated in the middle of a steep bank at terrific speed, my eyes were shut while passing, but he didn't know it. I knew then that should we be crossing at the station we were approaching at such a clip, it would be curtains for us.

This station was called Matjesfontein, a regular crossing place for all trains, because nearly all engines watered there. For the moment it was still out of sight, but I felt almost like collapsing from anxiety as to what the next curve would reveal, but I dare not show it.

While dropping the sand, reversing the lever, then opening the cylinder drain taps to ease the back pressure, I succeeded in hiding my real feelings, working very hard to comfort the troubled soul that was watching every movement made. Tooting the engine whistle frantically we approached the facing points, and there, to my intense joy, for which I thanked God, I saw that the station was clear. Was anything on it's way there? The next question that flashed through my mind. No! for there was the station master signalling me on with a white flag and "line clear" order in his hand, assuring me that all was clear through his section. That old man claimed all our love, although he may not have thought so after sending him sprawling on the platform, trying to snatch the order from his hand.

Feeling momentarily relieved, I had time now to realize that all my attention could be focused upon easing the mad rush that was growing apace, if at all possible. Even Bert, knowing that there was no danger of meeting anything opposite within that section, appeared to improve, slightly, because he known what had yet to come. Dips, curves, rises, mostly overlooking vast caverns hundreds of feet deep, each of which could easily be our tomb, should we fail to surmount them.

Speed was Bert's greatest fear now, there was no hope of jumping, because we were running on the lip of a mountain, with precipitous rocks on one side, and a deep drop on the other.

Trying not to show my excitement, with my stomach upside down we passed through Whitehills almost without seeing it, all the things that had been done so many times, had to be repeated. To do nothing was suicidal, and as we were close upon a short, but stiff gradient into Mostert's Hoek, I meant to make the most of it. All to no avail, not the slightest perceptible check took place. From now on I suffered every one of the human emotions possible.

Not knowing what to do next, I whistled up the guard, though feeling it was all quite unnecessary. He was doing all he could, no doubt, one must do something on such an occasion as this, or bust.

The box-van in the middle of the train, not only obscured our view of the caboose, but also debarred us from crossing the trucks to that vehicle. I would have felt more satisfied could I have seen the guard, and knew that everything possible was being done for the safety of the train. In an agony of feeling, a vague memory returned of enjoying this beautiful landscape, verdant valleys and kloofs. The half clothed kopjes, with their rugged sun-bathed tops in distant view, and glorying in this panorama of Nature's fairland, blossoming and fragrant to the senses.

Magnificent beyond anything that words or photography can convey, the high and lonely peaks that loomed in austere beauty.

But how all this had changed with my distorted vision, the kopjes had become huge frowning giants, and as though disturbed from their slumber, one could hear the echoes of their wrath as we rattled by them in shameful haste.

The valleys looked like yawning gaps all leading to perdition. Momentarily would they disappear as we rounded a curve, but only to appear again more sinister looking than before, seemingly enjoying the suspension of our coming destruction. The kloofs, dotted here and there bedecked with pigments of all colors, only reminded one of the grave awaiting to receive our mangled remains.

If my mate had enjoyed any hope before, which was doubtful, it had certainly deserted him now. I could feel him eyeing me keener than ever. Knowing this, in my subdued frenzy, I began to sing, but there was wisdom in my apparent madness.

The faster we careened the louder my voice was raised, to the accompaniment of screaming flanges and strange bumps, my heart high bursting at each interruption. Each curve in turn we seemed to round on one side wheels, and while the sparks flew you could feel that all the weight was on the one side of the boxes.

On each short straight I sighed, but we were too soon on the next curve to enjoy it, then the same emotions would recur. So it went on for many miles, only occupying but a few minutes, but it represented a lifetime to me.

At last we came to the long straight that led on to Laingsburg bridge, beyond which there was but one curve, the worst and most dangerous of all, but being that the approach was not too steep, there was still hope that our luck would not desert us. The lesser grade may help to reduce the speed to the safety limit, and it was several miles long, another advantage, if so, we need not fear the curve.

If our momentum did not respond to this last reduced gradient, then indeed were we lost, for if we could not round the curve at the far end of the bridge, 50 feet of solid rock faced us, one may imagine what would happen.

Being somewhat resigned to our fate, all action ceased, no more could be done. What was to be would be, and that was that.

Suddenly it began to dawn upon us that our speed was surely slackening. No, how could this be, our minds must be faltering, were not our brake-blocks almost worn out with the constant application, how was such a thing possible? Still, the fact remained, we could even feel that some power was restraining our head-long rush, and strange though it may seem, I was filled with a fear, a fear that perhaps some of the train had become derailed, or that possibly some under-slung apparatus of a truck had broken away and was tugging at the permanent way, both, or either could create serious consequences with a train of high explosives.

Soon overcoming this temporary fear, and upon looking back, everything appeared to be in order, all trucks upstanding, and no unusual clouds of dust to warrant danger. Who could explain this phenomenon that was taking place? Was it an act of God? We really thought so at the time, and do so still.

We crossed the bridge at no dangerous pace, and rounded the dangerous and dread curve just a little quicker than the ordinary way, just stopping the train some two bogie lengths beyond the platform.

What the station staff thought of me, I never knew, but they looked at me very searchingly, for such a quick passage between Matjesfontein and Laingsburg had never occurred before.

While examining my engine, the guard appeared, looking both excitable and fearful, asking me the time, being under the impression that his watch had stopped. His appearance forced me to the conclusion that he had just recently wakened, knowing nothing whatever of our dangerous run or difficulties.

This I eventually persuaded him to confess (promising that no report would be made to any official), at the same time adding, that during the transfer of cabooses, the continuous pipe was not even coupled up, a fact he didn't know till the train had stopped.

His efficient emergency hand-brake had furnished the seeming miracle.

NUTS PROVIDE FAT FOR FAMILY MEALS, RATION POINT FREE

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham
Economics Representative.

When homemakers find their fat supply is getting low, they may use nuts to bring richness and flavor to meals.

Because most nuts are at least half fat, they can be used successfully to supply some of the needed fat in meals. Besides their fat content, nuts are high in protein so may be used in a main dish, such as nut loaf. Nuts also provide B vitamins, especially thiamine, and a little iron and calcium.

A few suggestions for using nuts in cooking are:

In pastry, pecans ground fine may substitute for half the fat. Mix and bake like plain pastry.

Chopped nuts added to biscuits, muffins, waffles, or cookies give flavor and a crisp note. Usually one-fourth to one-half cup of chopped nuts to each cup of flour is a good allowance.

Nuts added to a plain cake or cottage pudding batter makes it richer. In a cake batter, one-fourth cup of nuts to each cup of flour is enough.

Nuts in a baked mixture tend to absorb moisture and make the finished product dry. When using a large proportion of nuts, place them first in boiling water a few minutes, then drain, and add to the mixture in the usual way.

The following measurements will be helpful: One pound of almonds, pecans, or walnuts in the shell will yield two cups of nut meats. One-fourth pound (4 ounces) of nut meats will give one cup of nut meats, chopped.

Typical Mexican Dishes Are Highly Seasoned

There are many different groups represented among the inhabitants of Mexico, and the customs and traditions of one section differ from those of another. Mexican food, on the whole, reveals a mingling of Indian simplicity and Spanish ideas, using a wide variety of native foods. The most outstanding characteristic, perhaps, is the Mexican's fondness for hot, highly seasoned food. The "chili" or pepper is used a great deal in cooking, and chili sauce is often served at every meal.

Among the most common foods are "frijoles" or Mexican beans, which differ in different sections, and the "tortillas," which are thin corn cakes cooked on a griddle, and often used in the preparation of other dishes. These two foods, along with small crops in the rural districts, form the mainstay of the diet of the lower classes. The wealthy people enjoy a much greater variety; many of them have been abroad and brought back food customs from other countries. Meats, fowl, fish, fruits and vegetables are all abundant.

The main meal in Mexico is served at noon. A typical meat dish would be a pork pie with tortillas for a crust and layers of tomatoes, onions, eggs and cheese. The whole seasoned with "fiery" seasonings.

Tamales are another typical dish of Mexican origin. These consist of a meat filling and corn mixture which are spread on clean corn shucks; these are rolled up, folded at the bottom, and steamed slowly for several hours. The following recipe for Baked Tamale is a simple version.

Baked Tamale
2 cups corn meal
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons softened butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups boiling water (or less)
3 tablespoons flour
1 egg, well beaten
2 tablespoons meat stock
Meat Filling

Combine salt with corn meal, rub in softened butter or margarine. Add boiling water to make a thin dough. Sprinkle with flour. Add beaten egg. If not thin enough to spread easily, add 2 tablespoons stock or water to thin. Make Meat Filling. Pat in one layer of the dough in bottom of oiled casserole; spread layer of meat mixture over it. Alternate with dough and meat mixture, with dough for the last layer. Bake in moderate oven (325-350 degrees F.) about 1 hour. May be served with tomato sauce. Serves six.

RECIPES

Pork Chops With Potatoes

medium-sized potatoes tblsp. flour
tsp. salt
tsp. pepper
tblsp. fat cups milk
pork chops

Wash and pare potatoes and cut in thin slices. Put a layer in a greased baking dish and sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper. Dot with small bits of the fat. Add another layer of potatoes and seasoning and repeat until all the ingredients are used. Pour the milk over it. Lay pork chops on top. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F) 1 to 1½ hours or until potatoes are tender.

Marble Cake

cup shortening cups sugar eggs cups flour
tsp. baking powder
tsp. salt
cup milk
tsp. vanilla squares unsweetened chocolate
cup milk

Cream shortening, sugar and eggs together. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, and salt and add alternately with one cup milk to the first mixture. Add vanilla and white beaten until light and fluffy but not stiff. Blend thoroughly. Divide the batter in halves. Melt chocolate over hot water with cup milk and add to one-half the batter. Put batter into a greased loaf pan using a spoonful of carding seeds. Melt shortening, add of chocolate mixture and one of the white, alternately, until all is used. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F) 60 to 80 minutes.

Coffee Ring

3 cups flour
1-3 cup sugar
5 tps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
¼ cup shortening
1 egg
¾ cup milk
¾ cup nuts, chopped
¾ cup raisins

Mix and sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening with a knife or rub in with the finger tips. Add beaten egg and enough milk to make a soft dough. Roll out to ¼ inch thickness into a rectangular-shaped piece. Spread lightly with softened butter, sprinkle with raisins and nuts and 1 tps. sugar. Roll like a jelly roll lengthwise. Bring ends together to make a circle and press together. Put on a greased pan and cut gashes around outside edge with scissors, two inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F) 25 to 30 minutes. Spread top with confectioners' frosting.

Baked Eggs in Tomato Sauce

2 cups cooked or canned tomatoes
1 slice onion
½ tsp. salt
2 tps. sugar
Few grains pepper
3 tps. flour
2 tps. shortening
6 eggs

½ cup grated American cheese.
Cook tomatoes, onion, salt, sugar and pepper together 20 minutes. Press the pulp through a sieve, discarding seeds. Melt shortening, add flour and mix well. Add the tomato juice slowly and bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Pour the sauce into six individual baking dishes. Break eggs, one at a time into a cup and slip carefully into each dish. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F) 15 minutes until eggs are firm.

Curried Lamb and Rice

2½ lbs. lamb, shoulder
2 tps. shortening
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ tps. curry powder
2 tps. flour
2 tps. water
3 cups boiled rice

Wipe lamb with a clean, damp cloth. Cut into medium-size pieces and remove the fat. Melt shortening in a frying pan, add lamb and cook until a delicate brown. Cover with boiling water. Add salt, pepper and curry powder mixed with a little cold water. Cover and simmer for about 2½ hours or until lamb is tender. Make a smooth paste of the flour and water and add enough to thicken the liquid. Mound hot rice in center of a hot platter and pour the curried lamb around it.

Individual Veal Cutlets

2 lbs. veal cutlet
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
¾ cup dried bread crumbs
1 egg
2 tps. water
2 tps. shortening
1 cup hot water

Cut veal into six pieces. Wipe with a clean, damp cloth, and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roll in bread crumbs, dip in well-beaten egg diluted with water and roll again in crumbs. Melt shortening in an iron frying pan. Put in the cutlets and brown on both sides. Add the hot water—and simmer until tender; about 45 to 50 minutes. Remove them and thicken the stock with a little flour mixed to a smooth paste with cold water. Pour the sauce over the cutlets.

SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

EXCLUSIVE HATS are always to be found in that special little Millinery Salon off the second floor main millinery department of the Snellenburg store. Dressed women come from far and wide when there is a new exhibit. Just now the fall collection is well worth traveling to see. Chiefly on the "dress" side, all are extra fine fur felts in black and the dictated shades of the fall and winter seasons. Each is meticulously finished. Take your choice of austere designs or those glorified with jewels, flowers, ostrich, and the like. Do see the revived large-brimmed beavers, in high shades, at $20 each. Other Salon models are priced at $12.75 up. (2nd fl.)

GALOSHES FOR YOUTH—in sizes for the one year old baby to the girls who wear size 10! There's also a collection for the boys—made just like Dad's. All the girls' shoes are rubber type, priced at $1.88 a pair. All are fleece lined, two-snapped, and all have flat heels. The boys' galoshes, also rubber type, have three or four buckles, according to size. All are fleece lined. Prices are as follows: 12 to 2, $3.15; 2½ to 6, $3.38; 6½ to 12, $3.75. Buy ahead and outfit approaching winter weather! Snellenburg Shoe Dept. (1st fl.)

A FAMILY LIBRARY of tremendously worthwhile informational books can be built out of the excellent reprints of more expensive editions, to be had in the Snellenburg Book Dept. While there are fine reprints here at several prices, I refer particularly to those at but 69c each. Many are of immense help to students, being popular and clear treatments of many school and college subjects. Others are packed with delightful entertainment or instruction upon subjects appealing to adults as well as young people. Look them over. The quality of the books makes them very suitable for giving, too. I've already bought several for December 25th. (1st fl.)

BENSALEM OUT TO WIN SECOND GAME OF SEASON

Cornwells Heights Boys Ready To Play Stiff Game With Falls

A STIFF CONTEST

Falls Eleven Must Stop "Jack" Hansen If They Want To Win

Having broken into the win column last week, Bensalem will be trying for its second triumph of the season tomorrow afternoon when it lines up against the Falls Township eleven on the latter's field.

The Bensalemites have lost five of its season, their only win being over Southampton. But despite their losses, the Owls have managed to score in every game they played. Coach Bixler's lads have counted a total of 81 points. However, the Bensalem defense has been very weak, allowing their opponents to tally 114 points.

Coach "Mike" Deltisi's proteges have played but three games this season. Twice it beat Southampton and then it was held to a deadlock by St. Francis. The Falls defense has been superb, allowing but a safety to be scored against it. Neither Southampton nor St. Francis was able to penetrate the Falls' horton goal line.

In order to chalk up a win tomorrow, the DeRisims must stop "Jack" Hansen, triple-threat star of the Owls. Hansen has been bearing the brunt of the Bensalem offense, doing most of the running, kicking, passing, and blocking. A nice help from Don Abe, Ed Laster, and Kleha will make the Bensalem team hard to stop. Abe has just recovered from an injured ankle and is again running the ball.

The Fallsington team is depending on Freddie Hibbs, Dick Ellis, George Hartley and Jones in the backfield with Glenn Slaymaker, Andy Kish, Lessig, Johnson, Henry, Bellardo, G. Lynch and McSherry leading up the line.

In the other game scheduled for tomorrow, Morrisville goes to Princeton.

Newtown and Langhorne will clash on Playwick field, Saturday, while St. Francis travels to Doylestown to meet the National Farm School.

RECONDITIONING OF HEAVY UNDERWEAR IS WELL WORTH EFFORT

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham
(Home Economics Representative)

Reconditioning heavy underwear is well worth while this fall. Darn small holes or breaks before wearing or washing. If not caught promptly, small holes in underwear soon stretch to large ones or even ravel, and then may need patching.

If patching is required on a heavy suit, such as the thick, fleece-lined type, use lightweight knit material if possible—perhaps a piece from an old summer suit. Lightweight patches are less bulky than those of the same weight as the garment. Apply the patch with a tiny cross stitch around the edge to give elasticity.

Rework shapeless, round button-holes that will not stay fastened. If they are torn at the end or have raveled out completely, machine-stitch close around the edge before reworking.

To strengthen weak seams and prevent fraying, sew thin tape over the seam on the underside of the garment.

PRESERVE THE GAME BIRDS FOR FAMILY USE IN LOCKERS

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham
Home Economics Representative
Pheasants, woodcocks, wild ducks and other game birds which are to be preserved in freezer lockers should be promptly scalded after killing, then plucked, cleaned, washed and handled for freezing like other poultry. After washing, chill the birds immediately by hanging overnight where the temperature is below 40 degrees F. or, if necessary, by covering with ice water. Before freezing, tie the legs and wings tight to breast to save storage space, then wrap tightly in moisture-vapor-resistant paper and heat-seal. Freeze at zero degrees F. or lower, and store at zero.
The freezing and storage of game birds as well as game meat is definitely restricted in many states. The local game warden should be consulted before game birds are killed for freezing preservation. For additional help in freezing

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or uneasy passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisons matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisons waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Macaroni Soup
(Sopa de Macaroni)
1/2 pound ground beef
1/2 pound bulk pork sausage
3 onions, chopped
1 quart (4 cups) cooked or canned tomatoes
4 cups cooked macaroni
Grated Parmesan cheese
Chopped parsley
Cook meat slowly until well browned. Add onion and cook about 5 minutes. Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender; drain. Add cooked macaroni and tomatoes to meat, and simmer about 10 minutes. Serve with grated cheese and chopped parsley sprinkled over the top. The Mexicans serve this as a soup, but it is very thick.
